

Animal hospice and palliative care services is one of the fastest growing movements within the veterinary medical and animal care fields. The International Association for Animal Hospice and Palliative Care (IAAHPC) is leading this emerging discipline of pet end-of-life care by developing detailed guidelines for recommended practices, offering training and certification programs for veterinary and other animal hospice and palliative care professionals, supporting research, and developing business tools for service providers.

The IAAHPC has announced our second annual conference. “GPS – Guide to Pet Hospice Success” will be a three-day conference, November 1-4, 2012, in Denver, Colorado. Those attending the event will include current and future leaders in the animal hospice field. The event will provide attendees opportunities to network with these trailblazers, learn from their forward thinking and become educated on the products, programs, and plans needed to achieve a successful pet hospice business. Unique to our conference is the ability of sponsors to be intimately connected with attendees via table placement directly in, or just outside of, the lecture hall. We are also offering the opportunity for a small number of sponsors to deliver a presentation during the conference to all attendees.

Your organization as has the potential of being an important asset in the emerging field of animal hospice and palliative care and we invite you to consider the following levels of sponsorship:
